

Walkshop - Aqueduto das Águas Livres

Across the material and immaterial realities of contemporary Lisbon

No registration is needed to take part in the conference, the public presentation and the walk (except stay at Camping Monsanto). Registration for both the workshop and the stay at Camping Monsanto is 10 Euros and places are limited.

Participants who are not registered will have to reach the meeting point for the begin of the Walk by their own way (see indications page 2/2).

The first part of the conference will be an introduction to the walk and the aims of this event. Stalker/Osservatorio Nomade is presenting its approach to the theme of walking as instrument of knowledge. Teresa Marat-Mendes will make a presentation on the Aqueduto das Águas Livres, on the historical and social implications of its construction and its physical presence on the surrounding territory. Marc Latapie is presenting a concrete example of these interactions.

The second part of the conference, which is aimed to a larger audience, will explore the relationship between informal practices and built interventions in the domain of Architecture and Urbanism. It will do so by presenting two different European approaches - that of Stalker/Osservatorio Nomade (Roma) and that of Lacaton&Vassal Architectes (Paris).

The second part of the conference will also provide a link between the themes discussed and academics and professionals working in Portugal. This part of the conference will be moderated by Luis Santiago Baptista and followed by an open debate.

The walk is the key element of this event, since it is during this phase that direct and indirect interactions between the Aqueduct, its surroundings and the participants will take place.

Participants - including students of various disciplines, professionals and academics - will take part in a walk along the Aqueduct that will cover about 15 kilometres over two days. They will be encouraged to informally take notes on the situations that they consider more meaningful, and their notes will later be used during the workshop.

The walk is divided into two parts.

After the walk participants and members of Stalker will take part in a workshop. The aim of the workshop is to create a document that covers and synthesises the experience of the walk. The material collected by participants in various formats - including for instance written notes, pictures, sketches and recordings - will be edited, reformatted and prepared for public presentation. Participants are free to choose the medium/media of their choice to record their impressions. The "transcription" phase that will follow is a free exercise. It aims to tentatively provide a concrete object derived from an ephemeral and immaterial experience.

The edited material will be presented to a larger audience to illustrate 'the Stalker experience' as it has been specifically applied to our territory. This exercise thus complements the first part of the conference. The members of Stalker and those who took part in the walk will be involved in the group presentation, thus providing a strong and shared conclusion to the event.

only registered participants

for registered participants

- Time for lunch and dinner breaks during the Walk and during the Workshop will be decided by the participants. Participants are expected to bring or purchase their own food and refreshments

- The stay at the Camping is dealt with the organisation, but remember to bring your own tent. You can put your tent in the bus at Praça da Figueira on Thursday morning: it will be delivered in Camping Monsanto by the bus driver. It will be possible to stock it at the Camping on Friday morning and to go and fetch it up in the following days.

- Travel from Praça de Figueira to the starting point of the Walk will be by a private bus of the organisation, no transport is organised to reach the Galeria ZDB instead.

- You are free to bring a medium of your choice to record your impressions during the Walk (photo/video cameras, block-notes, sound recording devices...) that will be the material edited and reformatted in the workshop. You might bring your personal laptop for the Workshop too on Friday and Saturday.
